

Opioid Treatment and Your Community

The opioid epidemic has touched nearly every community across the country, and our communities in Indian Country are no exception. As your Tribe looks for strategic and effective ways to combat opioid abuse in your community, we invite you to take a look at the services offered through Indigenous Pact. Whether it is setting up a new line of treatment all together, or enhancing your existing behavioral health program, Indigenous Pact can help.

A Proven Track Record of Battling the Opioid Epidemic:

You won't find a firm with more experience in the development of Opioid Treatment Programs (OTPs) than Indigenous Pact. Our consultants collaborated with the Muckleshoot Tribe in Washington to design, build, and open an OTP in under 18 months. The construction of the clinic was overseen by Indigenous Pact and the clinic is operated by our firm with the guidance of the Muckleshoot Indian Tribe and their established Behavioral Health Program. We are currently in the first phase of development on a tribal clinic on the East coast and three more soon to be under contract across the United States.
